H*TLER'S TASTERS, about the little known historical story of the spirited girls chosen to taste Hitler's food to confirm it was safe. In a contemporary, pop-culture and satirical style, the play reveals the fictions and group-think that bring about "othering", which in the 1930s and 40s resulted in Jews and those deemed as "nonproductives and race polluters" to go missing. As Lutheran pastor, Martin Niemöller, in Germany said, "I didn't speak out...and then they came for me." Inspired by the true story of Margot Wölk who, at 94 years old, revealed her harrowing past as one of the fifteen women chosen for this "honor."
